REPORTS.

A NAVAL Court of Enquiry assembled at the British Consulate on the 17th of May. W. HUTCHINS Esq., H. M. S. Acorn President. W. H. LAY Esq., V. U. Captain Longwan, Silver Engle,

Captain WILLIAM, Brockham, - being Member of the Court to enquire into the loss of the new three-masted schooper Idas, the particulars of which we published a few days Samuel Pirts, master of the Idas, being unable o give the exact whereabouts of the vessel when he went on shore, the Court adjourned to the 18th for the evidence of the China, fisherman who took them off the Island three days after they were wrecked. The Court reassembled on the 18th, when the Captain appeared and stated, that the Chinaman was not forthcoming, having left the previous day for soil. The Court sat for two hours and a-half. endeavouring by a strict examination of the muster. mute and boatswain, to find out where the vessel was when wrecked, but again without effect. The Court again adjourned; we shall give its ul-timatum under these extraordinary circumstances, as soon as arrived at. Am, bark Nestor, Capt. Cloutman, from Nsgasaki, 7th inst., bark Delaware, loading for this port, Brit, brig Water Lime will shortly load for Hongkong; experienced light easterly winds throughout the passage.; Danish bark Emity Capt. Hansan, from Newchwang, May 4th, for Hongkong; on 6th it was discovered that the vessel had sprung a serious leak, it was found necessary to put into this port for repairs, the vessel making about 12 inches of water per hour. British bark Juno arrived same day from this port, barks Starling and Ecliptic and brig Catharisa left same day for Hongkong, barks Resensworth and Mariebas loading for Sectow; reports the capture of Danish brig Catharing and schooner Fulk by Pruss frigate Gazelle; experienced a continuation of lights winds and calms throughout the passage arrived at Shanghai 17th; Cargo beaus. - D. Hongkong, 28th May, 1864.

Signor Robbio's concert is to take place on Friday the 3rd of June instead of on the Blst lustant as previously announced. The reason of the postponement is in consequence of it being found impossible to make the necessary arrangements in time. The entertainment will be under the patronage of the Commandant, Officers and Members of the Volunteer Corps.

The purser of the P. & O. Steamer Azoff was robbed on Wednesday by two Chinese O Old Fruity Ports, in do. do., bottled by hoys who were employed in the ship. They Marber & Parker. broke open a clest in his cabin and abstracted $400 all in silver, and decamped; it is supposed they got laway to Macao. Information was given to the police respecting the robbery, and a Chinaman who shipped, and at the same time." secured," the boys, was applied to to refund the amount stolen, which he appears to object to do, and is keeping out of the way.

Volunteers is most indefatigable in his exertions to keep up the Corps, notwithstanding the great difficulties he must have experienced in getting any number of men in this Colony to combine for one common purpose. EXTRACTS.

The Prussian Attack on Duppel. The Times special correspondent with the Danish

Army, in a letter dated Sonderburg, March 18 verpool Albien. There was some slack and lazy firing this morning from the Prussian batteries at Broagerland. The cannonading began shortly before 10 o'clock, and all was silent at about 2 p m. All the efforts of the Prussian artillery were directed against the bastions of the Dibbol position; but up to this time, so far as I learn, no serious iuspression has been made on the Danish works. The shots fired may have been about 200, ball and shell. The Dybbol bastions answered with tro useless waste of gunpowder.

I went out to the Dybbol Mill, with a hope to see a general engagement, but the windmill one of the most conspicous objects in the landscape and as it is well known that the command of the outposts and many of the troops destined for action are generally concentrated there, the spot is of course, the aim of all the enemy's artillery. next found a safer and far better view from the shore leading to the Sönderhorg Ladeguard. a position from which I could look into the very hosom of the beautiful Vemmingbun, and the Prussian batteries posted on the chiffs overhanging its waters. We all fell into a mistake when we thought that the Germans had been making their preparations on the very west of the Broager peninsula. When their batteries were found to be not on the summit of the bills, but on the brow of the somewhat abrupt and craggy coats, as near to the Danish bastions across the bay as they rould be contrived. The batteries which fired this morning were only three. However adroitly placed the batteries may be, and however great the power of the modern artillery with which they are armed, the Prussians must be awars that their fire can have, at the distance of about a mile and a half, no very permanent and irreparable effect on mere earthworks. This is posibly the reason why they attached so much importance to the capture of Dybbol village and of the summit of hands as the result of the heavy fight of all yesterday, and of which the Danes have made no attempt to dispute the possession to-day. The line of bastions at Dybbol was constructed by engineers who knew nothing of recent inventions, and calculated distance actording to the gauge of the oldfashioned ordnance. The penin- thing valuable except a few book-cases, clothssula of Breagerland was left out of their reckoning as placed altogether out of reach and out of harm's way. Consider their surpise on seeing the balls and shells of the Prussin 24 pounders sweeping from the same peninsula not only all across the Vernming bund, but also all over the line of bastions, so as to hit with unerring aim the parapets of battery No. 10 placed almost near the coast of the Assund, three English miles from the spot where the piece was fired. Consider also that about 200 shots fired at bastion No. 5 all took effect upon their object (many of them penetrating the blockhouse, though without fatal effects, as it had been abandoned) with an accuracy which the old Danish artillery cannot even dream of emulating, so long as they fire only from Brongerlandthe result caunot be so very momentous; but what will it be if within three or four days they erect their batteries on the Avabjerg, and exchange shout with the bastions at Dybbol Hill, within the distance of about two thirds of an English mile? Moved by there considerations, the Danes no sooner were aware of their great loss esterday than they turned their efforts to recover their lost position on Aunbierg; and , as a preliminary movement, they attacked Dybbol village, by securing which they might have enabled themselves to make an onset upon Avabjerg in front andin flank. The attempt failed, howveer, in spite of the bravery of the troops engaged. The first regiment sent against Dybböl village went three times to the charge, and was thrice repulsed by to bed in the night without the certain expectation | accept risks and to grant Policies on the usual that the experiment would be renewed in the morn- terms. ing. I was awake and up at eix, and already felt confident that the caunon of Dybbol Hill would open fire on Dybböl village with earliest dawn. All was quiet till ton o'clock, however, and then, as I have already said, it was the Prussians who began the cannonade. Nearly all the Danish troops were turned out at an early hour, nevertheless, and I and most men, astorished at the silence of the Danish batteries, thought that the village was rather to be taken with by the bayonet than with the cannon; but as the day advanced, and no movement occurred, the terrible truth began to be spoken aloud, that no fresh endeavours should be made to recover the lost position of Dybböl village and Avebjerg. Should this really be the case. and should the Prussians remain in possession of the latter-named hill, so as to have leisure to construct their batteries, it is not easy to foresee what chance the old-fashioned Danish smoothbores would have against the Prussian rifled pieces. The bravest men in the Danish army look grave as they discuss these matters. All they cutta, Bombay, Mudras, Singapore, and Melknow is that they will hold the position to the bourne. last drop of their blood, but they hardly dare to tell how long their heroic resolution will be authorised to issue Policies on our behalf at that of any avail.

the Prussians, yesterday a hand to hand conflict with a bravery to which the Danes are ready to do justice.

I. who did not hesitate from the beginning to express my opinion that the abandonment to the enemy of the Broagerland, at the time of the retreat from the Dannevirke, would prove fatal to the defenders of Dybbol, shall not now conceal my conviction that the passession of the Avnbjerg | pared to grant Policies against fire to the extent is a great trump card that the Prussians have turned up in their bloody game against their therein.

The affair of yesterday cost very dear to the Danes. The wounded brought in were 270, although many were by no means seriously hurt. It is perhaps, not unreasonable to compute the whole number of men put hors de combat at 400. The wounded officers are stated at no more than six or seven. The Prussians can hardly have suffered less, seeing that it was they who asked for a few hours' armistice to-day, at two o'clock, to take care of their dead and dying, with whom the ground was strews. The Rolf Krake has taken no share in the late engagements, and she has even withdrawn from her position at the mouth of the Vermingbund to the opposite shore at the entrance of Horup Hav. The Monitor had orders not to expose herself to serious damage from the terrible artillery of the enemy, but to limit her activity to preventing the Trussians from attempting to cross the Sound. The Danes, have only this one ironclad vessel, are afraid they may be deprived of her services at their screet need, should they venture her too freely in undertakings which would be above her forces. I have already told you that her encounter at the Egernsund proved more damaging to her than the partisans of ironsides against heavy guns would be willing to suppose. The few shells thrown by the Prussians upon Sonderburg on Tuesday have done considerable amage to several houses, without, however, injuding any living being.

The Legal Mr. Pickwick.

Mr. Bovill the famous Nisi Prius advocate makes, it is said, by far the largest income of any practitioner at the Common law bar, according to some clearing £18,000 a year. He is a stately, imposing looking person, and has that Hongkong, are prepared to grant Pol presence and physique which go a long way to able at any of the following Perts: make up the effective advocate. When his face is at rest, you would take the baldheaded, benevolent looking spectacled old gentleman for a reproduction of Mr. Pickwick, minus his garters. In speaking, however, the countenance of the hon member for Guildford because more combative, and the brows are more frowning and knitted than we look for in the beaming face of Tupman's and Winkle's, and everybody's friend, except perhaps at those critical moments of history when Mr. Pickwick hurled an inketand at the retreating form of Alfred Jingle, Esq. or solemply declared to the unfortunate Winkle that he was a humbug, or confronted with equal fury at Rochester the infuriated Slammer of the 47th .- Court

Iron Shipbuilding on the Mersey This may now claim to be one of the greatest shipbuilding centres in the world. There is at present great activity in the yards on both sides of the river. Messrs. Laird brothers are building the iron-clad Agincourt for the Admiralty, and are bringing it rapidly towards completion. Messrs. Jones, Quiggin, and Co., on the Liverpool side, have seven large iron and steel vessels in course of construction, and one of them, the are now authorised to issue Policies against Fire keel of which has been recently laid, will be an as follows, viz:iron screw-steamer of 3,650 tons register. She will measure upwards of 400 feet in length, and will be divided into seven water-tight compartments, and is intended for the Australian trade, This is the largest ship yet built on the Mersey. In Messrs. Holderness and Chilton's yard adjoining, five large vessels are being constructed on Jordan's patent. Messra. Miller and Cot. Messrs-Evans and Co., Messrs. Hart and Sinnot. and Messrs. Potter and Co., have all several vessels in course of construction. In the aggregate there are now awenty-sight vessels on the stocks, representing a tonnage of 28,000 .- Li-Shakspeare's Will. This document, which consists of three sheets brief paper, has, by the direction of the judge of the Court of Probate, been carefully cleaned and each sheet placed in an elaborately polished oak frame between sheets of plate glass. The frames are made air tight, and on the top of each is a brace plate engraved. "Shakspere's Will, 15th March, 1616;" and each one is fastened with great earnestness as if grudging or disdaining a one of Chubb's patent locks. This excellent plan prevents its being handled when shown to the public and will very much add to its preservation. The three frames fit into a beautiful oaken box. and the memorial is now well worth seein; by those who take an interest in the coming " Shakspere Tercentenary." The judge has also sanctioned the taking of photographs of it, but in the presence of one of the record keepers of the court. This permission was refused by the late Sir C.

> Cresswell.—Sun. Mr. Paul Bedford, the comedian, is about to publish a kind of autobiography, under the title f "The Recollections and Wanderings of Paul Bedford, dedicated to his Patrons, the British "ublic." with the motto of "Facts, not Fancies." The work will comprise reminiscences of actors and theatrical life, both London and provincial, for nearly half a century.-Telegraph.

Scenes of War.

The Mississippi River correspondent of a Missouri paper gives an account of a recent visit to the district between Baton Rouge and Natches. in Harbour, or their Cargoes, He says .- " Nothing but ruin and desolation meets the eye. Not a plantation is left unburnt, and blackened chimneys are all that remains of many once magnificent mansions and extensive egro quarters. Take this as an example : About 50 yards back from the river bank stands what country village. Not a vestige of fence can now verpool be seen. The house is completely gutted of everypresses, bedstoads, and a billiard table. Large doors were broken down, and some had panels punched out, and the windows broken in, as if they had been stoned by a squad of schoolboys, The articles of furniture abovenamed were completely demolished. The railing of the stairway was smashed to pieces and the fragment carried away. The floor was strewn with fragments of books, periodicals, and private letters. The plastering on the walls was broken by a club or camp axe, or a bayonet had been driven against ts polished surface, causing unsightly holes to appear. From the house we passed into the garden. A few venerable, lonely fig trees were li that was left to indicate that there had once been an orange grove or fig orchard on the plantation. A little lakelet now assumes the appearance of a pond on a prairie. We came now to the family burying ground, where bodies for two or three generations had apparently been deposited by tender, loving hands. Large vaults. constructed of brick and stone, and beautiful marble urns had been torn from their accustomed places and broken and scattered over the ground. Every vault had been broken into, the coffins opened, and sometimes broken to pieces. The entire country presents a sad spectacle. The torch has been applied indiscrimately."-Times.
